Tickets for Fire Victims Benefit Performance On Sale Tomorrow

Our City comment & discussion by THOMAS D. WATSON

Honor Fire Heroes' Memory By Purchasing Tickets for Testimonial Entertainment

TICKETS for the entertainment which is to be given in honor of the two men who lost their lives while fighting the hill fire, will be placed on sale tomorrow.

This entertainment will be given Monday night, November 6, at the Tuesday Afternoon clubhouse.

That every seat in the house will be sold is a foregone conclusion. The price is to be $5 per seat. To some this price may seem high, but to us it seems more than reasonable.

The program to be presented will be of such a character as to really be priceless. Such a galaxy of performers could not be brought together for any occasion save one such as this is.

* * *

THE citizens at large should and undoubtedly will make an immediate response and buy the house out before the opening day. There are only 765 seats to sell and we feel sure that more than this number are awaiting the opportunity to do their bit for the families of the men who sacrificed all for the benefit of us who are left.

Of course, the main purpose of staging this benefit is to raise a fund for the families of the two men, but the Glendale people, through this means, will be given an opportunity to show by their presence that the city honors these heroes more than money can demonstrate.

* * *

THE order the State Railroad Commission issued recently which instructed the Southern California Edison company to reduce its rates for electricity has been well received throughout this section of California.

We notice comments in the newspapers of many of the cities surrounding Glendale in which they discuss the saving to the consumers in their territory.

The order, which goes into effect November 15, mentions that a reduction of 7½% is made to cities for resale.

* * *

GLENDALE comes under this class. We presume our city council has already decided to pass this saving on to the consumer.

While 7½% does not seem much when figured for one month, in a year's total it means quite a saving.

Economy is in the air right now. The people all over the country are calling a halt on wasteful expenditures. Public officials from the President of the United States down are accepting this as the people's desire and endeavoring to carry out their wishes to the fullest extent.

* * *

IT is well that this condition does exist for during the war extravagant tastes were formed which have been very difficult to curb.

MEXICAN OFFICIAL HONORED AT DINNER

Dr. Jessie Russell of this city was hostess Saturday evening at a charming dinner served at the Egyptian Village cafe in honor of Senor A. S. Fernandez, assistant superintendent of the Mexican National railway, and the personal representative of President Obregon of Mexico in whose interests he came to the United States. He represented President Obregon in accompanying the train which carried the chamber of commerce excursion to Mexico City, and personally directed the routing. Guests at the dinner naturally included Glendalians who took the excursion, covers being laid for Mayor and Mrs. Spencer Robinson, Judge Gavin Craig of Los Angeles, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Twining, Messrs. Herman Nelson and Peter Ferry, the guest of honor and the hostess. Senior Fernandez is vice president of the Companie Servicio, a large Mexican corporation which controls the warehouses of the coast handling Mexican and American goods. He returns tonight to his home in the City of Mexico.

SCIOTS' EDITION OF DAILY PRESS, IN COLORS, COMING

The big Sciots' edition of the Glendale Daily Press, intended to be issued today, is necessarily postponed until tomorrow. Persistent and insistent demands for space by advertisers compel the delay, as we do not wish to disappoint any. This edition will be one worth while, from the standpoint of both the advertiser and the readers. It will contain information about the big circus the Sciots are putting on that cannot be found elsewhere, and the ads will be of greatest interest to the Glendale buying public as our merchants have much to offer in their respective lines.

This special edition will be printed in colors on the Daily Press' new 24-page color press, the first and only one ever seen in Glendale. It will be a work of art.

COMING ELECTION OF DIRECTORS FOR C. OF C.

Secretary Sanders Says "Dead Ones" Not Wanted

Chamber of Commerce directors must be men who have at heart the real welfare and progress of Glendale.

Secretary E. F. Sanders emphasized this fact this morning in an interview pertaining to the approaching Chamber of Commerce election November 27.

The efficiency of the Chamber of Commerce during the present year has been at a maximum, in the opinion of Mr. Sanders, because of the real civic spirit exhibited on numerous occasions by its board of directors. However, by action of the board of directors taken March 4, any director who has served on the board for two years continuously cannot succeed himself to office.

This means that seven of the fourteen members of the present board of directors cannot succeed themselves. They are Jesse E. Smith, C. D. Lusby, Roy L. Kent, Peter L. Ferry, Dan Campbell, D. L. Gregg and C. E. Kimlin.

Directors who may be re-elected are George K. Bentley, W. E. Hewitt, P. J. Hayselden, R. F. Kitterman, A. R. Eastman, R. C. Pendroy and L. H. Wilson.

Any member of the Chamber of Commerce in good standing can be nominated as a director by receiving the signatures of ten members upon a nominating petition which must be filed not later than November 12.

"A community can progress just as fast as its Chamber of Commerce — and not faster," remarked Secretary E. F. Sanders. "A Chamber of Commerce is what its board of directors make it. A good many people think that a chamber of commerce is what its secretary makes it. Not at all! The secretary merely carries out the will of the board of directors. He lays the problems before the board of directors and it has to solve them. I would rather have a good board of directors and a poor secretary than a good secretary and a poor board of directors. The Chamber of Commerce will go further. The secretary isn't an executive in any sense. He has no voting power.

A chamber of commerce director, according to Secretary Sanders, must have certain essential qualifications: First, he must have a true belief in Glendale and be interested in its welfare from patriotic, civic and financial standpoints. Second, he must be ready to make the necessary sacrifices and should pledge himself to attend each one of the 52 directors' meetings during his term of office.

"A 'dead' member on a board of directors actually is an injury!" exclaimed Mr. Sanders. "He not only keeps the work from going on but he sets it back. When a man is asked to serve on this board he should be asked: 'Have you the time to give to this work that it requires?'"

Secretary Sanders is hopeful that the personnel of the new board of directors will equal in quality that of the present board. He made it plain that he has no selfish interest in this desire and added that he was more than willing to resign should a more competent secretary be found to succeed him. He stated, however, that he does have a selfish interest in the progress and development of Glendale.

GROUND IS BROKEN FOR NEW BASE BALL PARK

Construction of Grandstand Will Begin at Once

Ground was broken at 1145 South San Fernando road this morning for the Glendale ball park.

Construction is to be started at once upon a covered grandstand, the first unit of which will accommodate about 4500 fans. Additional units will be added later. This will represent an investment of about $12,000. The contract is held by John Hines of Los Angeles. All lumber and building material is to be purchased in Glendale.

"We expect to have the park completed about the 15th of November," asserted Frank Kerwin this morning. "This will be in time for the third game of the Winter League."

Plans provide for a number of dressing rooms and showers under the grandstand.

Negotiations have not been completed for a big league team to make this its winter headquarters according to Mr. Kerwin. He added that the possibilities continue to look very favorable.

Mike Donlin of Hollywood, former pitcher for the New York Giants, is expected back in Southern California within the next few days. He will have active charge of the organization of the local ball team.

The property, which is being leased for the ball park by Roy Johnston of 1133 South San Fernando road, consists of approximately four acres. The frontage on the west side of San Fernando road is about 185 feet, although the width at the rear of the property is about 369 feet and its entire depth is almost 500 feet.

Work of removing trees, preparatory to grading the diamond, is going forward today. The first load of lumber for the grandstand probably will be dumped tomorrow.

Mr. Johnston is enthusiastic about the development of the district. He exclaimed: "Watch San Fernando road!"

CREDIT MEN TALK ABOUT CLOSING NOV. 11

Matter Finally Left to American Legion to Work Out

The main topic of discussion at the Credit Men's luncheon yesterday at the Egyptian Village cafe was the question of the stores keeping open on Armistice day, November 11. As Armistice day falls on Sunday this year, Monday will be observed.

F. C. Butler, manager of the Lewis Jewelry company, who is a Spanish war veteran, is strongly in favor of the stores closing Armistice day. He said: "I don't believe the people have forgotten the war and the great victory won as to neglect the observance of Armistice day, and we should see to it that all close on that day."

After considerable discussion, pro and con, in which it was brought out that we have too many holidays, a motion carried asking the local American Legion chapter to take the matter of closing up directly with the merchants.

The bad check artists continue to ply their game in Glendale and additional warnings were issued for merchants to be on the alert for this gentry.

JUDGE LOWE HAS SUCCESSFUL OPERATION

Judge Frank H. Lowe, city recorder, was arrested a day or two ago by old Dame Nature for exceeding the speed limit imposed on men for working too hard and not sparing their bodies. He was sentenced to the hospital and to have his appendix removed. The operation was performed this morning and Dr. Eckles reports that he came through gamely and will recover rapidly, according to all indications. Congratulations, Judge.

ALL THINGS READY FOR BIG SCIOTS CIRCUS

First Performance This Evening, Opening at Seven

The big top is up and all things are ready.

The dogs and ponies and monkeys, and everything else that is needed for the carying out of a complete circus program are on the ground and are ready to go.

Promptly at 7 o'clock tonight the first performance of C. R. Horney's old-fashioned one-ring circus, which has been brought to Glendale by Pyramid 39, Ancient Egyptian Order of Sciots, will start. Two shows will be given each evening, the second to start at 9 o'clock.

For weeks the Glendale Sciots have been working in preparation for this circus. They have been laying the plans and have been busy putting those plans into effect. The undertaking was a big one. At the outset the job seemed to be too large for the local order to tackle, but the earnest workers of the organization have put the thing over.

This circus is complete. It has everything that the old-fashioned show should have. There are clever animal acts, attractive dances, unique wire stunts and acrobatic achievements.

This circus will have its sideshows, the same as the largest in the land, and every one of them is well worth seeing. There will be music and gaiety, pink lemonade and peanuts.

The local Sciots band, consisting of 52 pieces, will furnish music each evening during the circus.

For two hours daily the calliope will travel through the streets of the city to remind the local residents that the big Sciots circus is on.

The twenty clowns who will liven up each performance are all trained in their work. They will put on stunts that are of especial interest to the children.

The active sale of tickets assures the success of the venture.

The chief purpose of this circus is to provide funds for the purchase of uniforms for the new Sciots band. This band is one of the finest organizations of its kind in this part of the country and in order that it may go to the San Diego convention on November 15 it must be uniformed. The remainder of the money that is raised will be used for cnaritable purposes, it is claimed.

Thursday night has been designated as American Legion night. At that time the boys of the American Legion will receive especial attention at the hands of those in charge of the show. On Saturday afternoon there will be a special matinee for the benefit of the Fire Victims' fund and all of the proceeds of this event will go to this very worthy cause. This performance will start promptly at 2:30 o'clock.

Tonight, as a special favor to the children, every child who attends the circus will be given a toy balloon.

The admission price is 10 cents.

GRAND JURY NOW INVESTIGATING CAFETERIAS

Eating Places in Schools Subject of Rigid Inquiry

The financing and operation of school cafeterias is now being investigated by the county grand jury.

Information in regard to the manner in which cafeterias are operated in the local school system has been requested by Walter K. Mitchell of Los Angeles, auditor for the grand jury. He inquires who operates them and under what law or section of the code and if rental is charged for the use of the school property.

Richardson D. White, superintendent of the schools, states in his reply: "The cafeterias are operated by the Parent-Teacher associations of the different schools. No rental is charged for the use of the school property."

Inquiry is made also as to whether or not special managers are employed and how they are compensated and if any employes of the school district devote any of their time in connection with the operation of the cafeterias.

Reply has been made as follows: "No managers or employees are paid by the board of education. The principal of the school exercises a general supervision."

In regard to what becomes of the profit or loss, this question has been covered as follows: "Wherever profits have been made they have been used to replace broken or worn out equipment; where there has been a loss the parent-teacher association pays the same. Some of the teachers and occasionally visitors purchase their lunches at the cafeterias. School funds are used to pay for water, gas and light because we have been unable to secure separate meters for the cafeterias.

"In all of our cafeterias except one the parent-teachers associations purchased the equipment. In the Wilson avenue school a cafeteria was opened about three years ago for which the heavy equipment such as stove, steam table, ice box, was purchased by the board of education. I am not sure at this time whether or not the board purchased the dishes and tinware, but could probably determine this fact by a search of the old financial records. All replacements since that time have been paid for by the parent-teacher association."

MURDERER IS GIVEN LIFE SENTENCE

[By Associated Press]

TACOMA, Wash., Oct. 23.—John Carl, 73, was found guilty of first degree murder by a jury in superior court this morning and the sentence was fixed by the jury at life imprisonment. Carl killed Mrs. Eunice Anderson with a butcher knife and a hatchet on September 28. He had previously served a prison term for killing a man in Alaska.

BURGLARS GET THE HABIT

C. C. Francis of 1529 South San Fernando road no longer can fire his shotgun at his alarm clock in the morning—that is, supposing that he was addicted to such a noisy habit.

The theft of both gun and clock was reported yesterday to the police department. Entrance was gained through a panel in the door to his room. Only three weeks ago Mr. Francis had three silk shirts stolen.

RECEPTION GIVEN MASONS' GRAND COMMANDER

Glendale, and Hollywood Knights Templar Are Hosts

Guests of honor at the dinner for Knights Templar and their families served at the Masonic Temple Monday night were a company of distinguished men. The affair was essentially a formal reception by the Glendale and Hollywood commanderies in honor of Albert E. Boynton of San Francisco, grand commander of the state of California. Other notables present were: Charles Malcolm, deputy grand commander; Robert Wankowski, past grand commander; Judge Thomas of Santa Ana, grand prelate; Audrey Parks of Long Beach, department inspector; Rollo Goodrich of Los Angeles, inspector for Redlands and Riverside district; Andrew J. Copp, Jr., department commander; Henry E. Krohn, past commander of Los Angeles commandery No. 9; George W. Bonton of Dayton, Ohio, past grand prelate of that state; James Wilson, commander of the Hollywood commandery and staff.

Addresses were made by Grand Commander Boynton and Deputy Grand Commander Malcolm on the general work of Knights Templar throughout the country.

Past Prelate Bunton spoke on the progress made by the order of De Molay in Ohio, and was followed by P. Y. Priaulx, past commander of the Glendale commandery, on the same theme. All of the guests mentioned responded with appropriate addresses. In addition to these there was a brief program of entertainment to which Mrs. Wenzel contributed vocal solos, with Mrs. Porter Custer at the piano. Readings were given by Mrs. Evelyn Pierce, worthy high priestess of Omar Shrine No. 9. Both ladies were called upon to respond to encores.

To members of Omar Shrine the commandery was indebted for the beautiful decoration of the banquet room and temple. In the banquet hall Hallowe'en colors provided the motif for floral and other embellishments of the tables, at which more than 200 guests were seated. Decorations in the hall above consisted of ferns, palms, chrysanthemums and dahlias in the commandery colors.

ALLEGED BUNKO MEN TAKEN TO COUNTY JAIL

But Two Intended Victims in Glendale It Is Believed

Failure to find that D. Gordon Reveley of Los Angeles and John B. Mitchell of San Francisco had attempted to swindle more than two local persons marked the investigation into their case yesterday by Col. J. D. Fraser, chief of the Glendale police department, the latter reports.

Evidence held against them, however, is believed sufficient to convict them on the charge of operating a confidence game. Although it is reported that they offered to repay the $350 secured from Mrs. Olive A. Stowe of 452 Pioneer Drive, no definite arrangements have yet been made to that effect.

A list of stockholders in Hamilton No. 3, a dry oil well, which was abandoned about a year and a half ago, evidently was in the possession of these men. How they obtained it is being investigated by the district attorney's office.

Mrs. Mary T. Arfwedsen of 434 West Harvard street is being congratulated by her friends for resisting the tempting offer to exchange oil stock, with a par value of $600, and $400 in cash for stock in the Southern California Edison company, which is now selling above par.

Reveley and Mitchell were taken to the county jail yesterday afternoon and the automobile in which they came to Glendale was taken back to a Los Angeles rental agency.

NEW DIRECTOR OF CHORAL CLUB IN ACTION

The Glendale Choral club rehearsal Monday evening was the most interesting and enthusiastic one that has been conducted. J. Arthur Meyers, the director, was especially pleased with the results that are being secured and the type of musical talent that is being drawn to the organization. Part of the evening was given to singing some lighter choral numbers and then they turned to ColeridgeTaylor's "Hiawatha's Wedding Feast."

Mrs. Alex Mitchell, the president of the organization, extends an invitation to any experienced musisians in Glendale to become members of this community organization.

The large number of men that are taking an interest in this work is especially gratifying. However, there is still room for more to come in. Several new members joined last night.

The next rehearsal will be Monday of next week starting at 7:30 p. m. in the auditorium of the high school. A special entertainment will be given during intermission.

Its New Chocolate Malted Milk Drink Wins High Praise

The S. W. Brown Co., Inc., manufacturers of the celebrated Green Hill beverages and condiments, at 463 W. Los Feliz road, recently gained wide publicity for its new drink, "Comalt," a chocolate malted milk, which is a perfect food as well as drink. The company had representatives at the National Bottlers' association's convention held in Providence, R. I., and Comalt took the meeting by storm. Everybody was drinking it and the orders for it taken there and by telegraph since the convention closed, aggregate over half a million dollars, the company declares.

Mail inquiries have come from many states and Canada, all from dealers and bottling plants. Nothing in recent months has given Glendale such wide publicity as this new, healthful drink. Besides it will bring in money from all over the nation to be spent in Glendale in wages and improvements of the plant.

EIGHT TEACHERS OF INTERMEDIATE TALK TO PARENTS

In order that the parents might have a better understanding of the work being done at the school, eight of the teachers of the Wilson Avenue Intermediate school gave short talks on their work at the regular meeting of the Parent Teacher association held at the school Monday afternoon. Mrs. H. A. Thimm, president, called the meeting to order at 2:45 o'clock. The salute to the flag was led by Mrs. Frankie Webb, patriotic chairman, who outlined the new Lincoln salute. This was followed by the singing of one verse of "America."

Mrs. Pelley, membership chairman, reported 190 members in the association at present. A membership drive has been going on for the past two weeks. A treat of ice cream and cake had been promised to the room getting 100 per cent. Miss Gould's room, the B8-3, has already secured 100% and the campaign is to be extended for another week to give the other rooms an opportunity of making this mark. "COMALT"
Gives GLENDALE Nation wide Publicity at Eastern Convention
Closing last Saturday there has been held at PROVIDENCE, R. I., a convention of the National Bottlers' Association which has resulted in a tremendous business for a Glendale product.
We had our representatives at this convention demonstrating COMALT to those attending and are in receipt of wires that orders were taken amounting to Over Five Hundred Thousand Dollars
This means added prosperity to Glendale, the bringing of money from other states here for a local product, larger payrolls and continuous advertising for our city.
COMALT Is a Chocolate Malted Milk a perfect food drink and can be served either hot or cold.
These advantages so thoroughly appealed to the bottlers and distributors of the country that franchises were immediately taken up and besides this during the last few days we have received requests from hundreds who did not attend the convention.
Mail this morning brought inquiries from twenty-one different states as well as from Canada, all from dealers and bottling plants.
COMALT is a preparation that is suitable for every member of the family, either as a drink or food. For the children it is unequalled, as every ingredient that goes into it is the best obtainable and is a mental and physical builder.
If your favorite soda fountain or druggist has not got COMALT already in stock, tell him to get it from us; his supplies will always be fresh and of standard quality.

Truths in Epigram

Money and time are the heaviest burdens of life.—Samuel Johnson.

Nothing emboldens sin so much as mercy.—Shakespeare.

If you wish to preserve your secret wrap it up in frankness.—Alexander Smith.

Diogenes struck the father when the son swore.—Burton.

TEASING THE BRAIN

The practice of propounding a series of queries touching various topics, has been revived. It was started by Edison, marking one of his mistakes. The idea seems to be entertained that capacity to answer the questions is an index to the intelligence. As a matter of fact the formula leading to the interrogation concerning the age of Ann is more useful. There is no reason for believing that Edison was able to answer his own list, and no reason for thinking less of his erudition because of this.

In the mind there is stored a measureless mass of information. Some have so trained themselves that the multitude of details have been filed away in order. As occasion demands, each may be taken out, dusted off and furnished forth as a sample of wisdom. The busy mentality is to intent on useful accomplishments to bother with this sort of stuff. One may read just how many dollar bills placed end to end would reach to the moon. The time spent in the reading would be wasted, and the information not worth acquiring, and surely not worth retaining.

Experts in any trade or profession are familiar with terms that to the non-member are meaningless. Should there be special reason for learning the terms and the defintions, the non-member may do so easily by consulting the proper references. Suddenly to ask of the outsider to yield information about that to which he had devoted no time, and concerning which he has no interest, could not be deemed fair. He might fail utterly, and yet be brighter than the compiler of the list. Doubtless a boy reared in the city could puzzle the country lad, but let him visit the country, and the situation would be reversed.

The mind is best employed in thinking. So far as it is to be a storehouse, there seems to be small utility in making it the repository of junk.

PROBATION PLEAS

Three men guilty of deliberate fraud, carried on by elaborate and cunning method, have asked for probation. They had pleaded guilty. The offense was so serious that it had been thought wise to extradite them from Michigan for trial in California. These three have asked for probation. The decision may have been given by this time; in any case it rests with the court.

It may be said, however, that if criminals of this type are to have probation on request, the purpose of the probationary law is misunderstood somewhere. Either in the judicial mind, or that of the average citizen, there is an entire misconception touching the point.

For a youth, for the first time breaker of the law, and penitent, to be permitted to go on his honor, would be a course having general approval. It might save him from a criminal career. He would escape the stigma of having been a felon, and he would have been kept from contact with the depravity, that despite all precaution, must to a certain extent mark the atmosphere of a penitentiary. If after all, he continue on a criminal course, at least the public would be in no sense to blame, but would regard as worth while the giving of the opportunity to come back, without having gone very far.

For the mature and designing criminal the public has a different temper. It does not believe either that he merits clemency, or that, having received it, would be made better by it.

AT LINCOLN'S TOMB

The legend attached to the wreath laid by Lloyd George on the tomb of Lincoln was this:

"A humble and reverent homage to one of the world's greatest men."

As the distinguished British visitor stood for a moment in reverie he said: "He is the greatest man grown upon the American continent. He is growing, too—oh yes, he grows."

It was the fiery Stanton, who, turning from the Lincoln death chamber, tears streaming down his cheeks, said: "He belongs now to the ages."

And it was even so. The prophesy is beginning to be fulfilled. Only sixty years have passed, it is true, but the world has lived with centuries crowded into that brief span. The name of Lincoln shines more luminous than half a century ago. His majestic figure, his sad, strong face, his matchless benignity, his unexampled keenness of vision, his tender heart, his sorrow, his serenity, form memories that shall abide while mankind admires nobility of soul.

The visiting Englishman could not have found a straighter path into the affections of Americans than that which led him to the tomb of the first of their martyr Presidents.

TEACHING THE FUNDAMENTALS

So far as the public schools have wandered away from the fundamentals, tersely expressed as the "Three Rs," they have, in the estimation of many parents, wandered into error. Not that cultivation of the arts should be neglected; simply that these should not be permitted to crowd into insignificance the studies that form the real basis of an education suited to the average needs. There are graduates of high schools having no knowledge of English. If they seek a situation, or humbly hunt a job, they bring to it nothing acquired at school to make them competent. They must begin in ignorance, and at the expense of the employer learn the simple things that should have been acquired at school, particularly how to read, to write and not be stupid when confronted with simple arithmetical problems.

Once an eastern paper conceived the idea of training a lot of high school graduates to become reporters. Of more than a score of confident applicants given trials, not one proved capable. The trouble was that they could not spell. The reason they could not spell was that they never had been taught familiarity with the alphabet. The reason they had not been taught familiarity with the alphabet was the intellectual laziness of pedagogy. Somebody had conceived a short cut to knowledge, the first step being, not to conquer the alphabet, but to hurdle over it. Children knew how to read, after a fashion, without knowing their letters. This was a short cut, but to the lack of knowledge.

The state owes the child an education rather than a vague contact with cultural fads. The child is not getting its dues when its report card shows high standing in drawing and music, but low standing in the "Three Rs" and in such practical studies as history and grammar.

A wise man is continually adding to his wisdom.

CONCERNING SILK WORMS

By ESTELLE LAWTON LINDSEY

The story of the silk worms is old; but it is time that somebody restated the principle back of it.

Day was when silk worms were respectable members of society; they toiled and spun, were active and happy. Then man discovered that if the worms had everything done for them they could give their entire energy to egg laying and cocoon making.

Estelle Lawton Lindsey

So man provided food and warmth and light and proper air and the silk worms degenerated until they were nothing but lazy, loggy, sleepy egg laying, gormandizing lugs. They laid eggs and spun because nature wished the jobs on them; but they did and do nothing else. They are degenerate and repulsive in spite of the beautiful strands that they weave for their death houses.

I thought of the worms this morning as I read an article in Current History, by William Dudley Foulke. His subject was "The Decline of Modern Civilization," and in it occurs a few sentences that ought to galvanize a few of us into thinking. One is this:

"Many of our new discoveries have brought evil far greater than the benefits conferred"—"Real progress depends on human character" and, finally, this significant indictment against our system of education:

"The power of the pupil to control his will, even against his desire; the power of doing disagreeable things cheerfully is not developed."

Brave, Mr. Foulke. How can character be developed when everybody has everything possible done for him at so much per? Let any question present itself to your mind and immediately you will remember, or be told of, some kind of service corporation that will look it up for you. Nobody but hired folk now plan anything or execute anything.

Your house, your clothes, your food, your garments, your hats, your architecture, your garden plotting, your travels, your books and periodicals are all planned for you, and the firms that plan them even keep expert salespeople to make up your mind for you when the power of choice must enter into any transaction.

Schools have abandoned arbitrary courses of study and the child shunts one course after another until he finds the easiest of all, for him; and if ultimately he fails in his examinations he is sent to a special room where experts take from him the arduous necessity of too much thought.

About the only fight that man now has to make is the fight for his right to decide anything; almost the only activities not yet taken over by a corporation are child bearing, breathing and digestion; and expert money makers are now trying to figure out how these can be done vicariously, and at a profit.

Marry today and find your bargain hard tomorrow—the judge will absolve you from all your marriage vows as soon as you show him how they irk you.

Last week a 16-year-old girl was divorced because her husband "bullied" her and two kids who had married "for a joke" decided that they were entitled to relief from obligation and were divorced pronto.

Every employer of labor is confronted by the same problem, the inefficiency of high priced employes. Women provided with every modern convenience still dodge home making; and they will wear any kind of a tonsorial atrocity rather than attempt to plan their own costumes.

If we continue to accumulate inventions and public service corporation it will be but a short time before the human race follows the disgraceful example of the silk worm. As it is we are degenerating in character about as fast as we can, and the end of degeneration is extinction.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

In the house across the way there lives a maiden aunt. All maiden aunts—most of them, anyhow—are of the elect. Life arranges that little matter for them. If any one must stay at home to walk the dog when the family goes to the seashore it is the maiden aunt. She is always the extra hand about the house. She spells the professional nurse and aids the cook and takes the necessary stitches in Maudie's new clothes. At Christmas the family gives her a morocco bound copy of the Lives of Great Poets and tells her they could not do without her. Then they put the book on the center table.

"She's a saint," says Mrs. Pilgrim, referring to the maiden aunt across the way.

She is all of that. She has all the virtues of the standardized maiden aunt and a few of her own. Nevertheless, as the preferred writers used to say, I'd rather have a rattlesnake under the bed than have her on the premises. She talks too much and too truthfully. Persons who cannot tell the right lie at the right time ought at least to be silent. No community can be at its best in the presence of candor.

"We heard the other day," says the maiden aunt—

Then she goes on to relate a lot of harrowing things about the neighbors. She never talks of things. Always of people. There isn't an issue on the political horizon, so far as is reflected in her chatter. Nothing has happened in Europe. Nothing in the world, outside of our own street, the Wednesday Evening club and her outlying circles of acquaintanceship. Not that she ever seems moved by malice. She wants to be interesting, poor girl, and so she tells the things she knows will interest. They always do, too. I've seen men and women turn pale as the maiden aunt chatters gaily on. She is just as candid about the family across the way as about any other family. Nothing mean, understand. Nothing venomous. Just sparkling, light, terribly truthful chit-chat. A vocal X-ray that discloses all the social skeletons.

There should be conversation classes in school to teach the children what to talk about. Even more, what not to talk about.

THE LISTENING POST

By James W. Foley

CHAPTER X

Berwind Canyon, Colorado.

This is the tenth of October. The weather is clear and warm as spring. There has been a season of endless rainfall and the roads are rutted and rough.

JAMES W. FOLEY

Creeks have been full to the banks and bridges have been torn out and destroyed. A tourist from the east not long ago stopped his car in a rain down on the edge of a dry creek to put on the curtains.

A wall of water came down from the upper canyons while he stopped, turned his car over and drowned his wife and two children before he could rescue them from the swirling waters. That shows how the water comes down in this particluar Lodore. It also explains the wreck over in Wyoming the other day when a train went down through a hundred foot culvert and fifty passengers perished. They are still searching the sand below the wreck for bodies.

* * *

But today is springlike. The sun is peeping through. There has yet been no killing frost. In this mountain canyon where there are three coal mines the miners' houses in many cases are beautified with old-fashioned morning glories, and they are yet in bloom. Cosmos and dahlias are still blooming freshly with no trace of frost.

Today is a quiet day for there is no work in the mines. That is one of the difficulties of the whole mining business. There is no certainty of a full week's work or even of a half week's work. Just now the miners are working a two day week. And the amount of work will not increase until orders for coal come in with the advance of the winter season.

* * *

Unemployed men with families, or men working only two days a week are of necessity restless and discontented. Yet with the present system of mining and marketing coal there seems no help for the present difficult conditions. Purchasers will not buy and store coal. So the coal business is sometimes feast and sometimes famine. The company cannot mine coal and store it for that would mean a double handling.

* * *

Coming up this canyon from the main line of the railroad, the road following a spur track into the mines, the first thing I saw was a Pacific fruit refrigerator car. You may wonder what carload of fruit was carried from California up here and lest you wonder too much I will tell you it was a carload of red grapes out of which the Italians make their supply of red wine. Last year this canyon alone consumed five carloads of grapes.

That gives some idea of the widely distributed demand for wine grapes and also explains the increase in the returns from vineyards in the past few years. Some of the wine is the old "Dago red" as it is termed. Sometimes it is fortified and given a greater "kick." The Italian family looks upon wine as one of its necessities.

The school authorities here are making an effort to discourage the families from sending children to school with a lunch consisting of bread and a little red wine. They are seeking to show that it is not such a diet as will make for the best health and strength and ability to do school work.

* * *

I had dinner last night at a miner's boarding house and I know now how they suffer for food up in these camps. There was platter after platter of beefsteak, chili con carne, fine cottage fried potatoes, stewed tomatoes, bread with good butter, baked apples, jam, cake and tea and coffee. It was a meal good enough for a hungry king and I am not a king, but I was hungry. All of us about the table did ample justice to the splendid fare. The town marshal was there, three or four miners, and half a dozen young ladies who are teaching in the canyon schools. There was also the local minister, the Y. M. C. A. secretary and various officials about the camp.

SONGS OF THE POETS

Man—By Sir John Davies (1569-1626)

I know my soul hath power to know all things,
Yet she is blind and ignorant in all:
I know I'm one of Nature's little kings,
Yet to the least and vilest things am thrall.

I know my life's a pain and but a span;
I know my sense is mock'd in everything;
And, to conclude, I know myself a Man—
Which is a proud and yet a wretched thing.

THE PACIFIC ERA

By DR. FRANK CRANE

WE ARE entering upon the Pacific Era. That is, the era where the dominant interests of the world will center on the Pacific ocean, and not the Atlantic.

This is not a statement perked up to attract attention by its novelty; it is a conviction shared by many serious and qualified minds.

On June 21, 1921, General Jan Christian Smuts, premier of the Union of South Africa, in addressing the session of the British Imperial Conference in London, declared: "Our temptation is still to look on the European stage as of first importance. It is no longer so. Undoubtedly the scene has shifted from Europe to the Far East and to the Pacific. . . The problems of the Pacific are, to my mind, the world problems of the next 50 years or more. . . There, I believe, the next great chapter in human history will be written."

Putnam Weale writes: "The Chinese question is the world question of the twentieth century."

Those to whom the Chinese question is on a level with selecting laundry men, or concerns only a local labor disturbance along the American west coast, or has something or other to do with "the Yellow Peril," have not waked up. They are thinking in terms of 50 years ago.

The Chinese question is a great big booming issue right upon us, heavy with destiny.

In sheer numbers China is imposing, some 400 million are there, ready to play the world game at the next inning.

They are not savages or morons. They were civilized before the pyramids were built.

They are of a stock that does not peter out.

Greece has dwindled. Rome decayed. Spain lost her vitality. The fleets of Venice vanished from the seas. Germany committed hari-kiri. Russia has gone mad. France is drying up, ceasing to breed. Turkey is a decadent force, going on the crutches of militarism.

The only two real powers left are the Asiatic (Chinese and Japanese) on the one side of the Pacific, and the English speaking people (Great Britain and America) on the other. With the Dutch and Scandinavians forming a considerable third.

China is the best soil for Democracy. From the beginning they have governed themselves. Rulers, kings and politicians have meant less to them than to any other people. Their wars, dynastic changes and so-called leaders, have been surface affairs, except as they occasionally destroyed. The life of the people went on beneath, undisturbed.

The history of Government everywhere has been one of constant Meddling and Robbery, with occasional Murder and Devastation.

In China Government has done less Meddling than elsewhere.

Hence the people have reached the highest degree of Discipline, Craftsmanship, Unity and Philosophy.

They need from the West five things: the Christian Ethic, the application of Capital to Industry, Universal Education, the Scientific Spirit, and the development of Public Opinion.

They are quick imitators, and will have all these things within the next 50 years.

China is a better soil for Christianity than Europe. The European world made a huge failure of Christianity, smothering it in heathenism, devitalizing it by organization.

The Chinese will do better. They are natural Christians.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

THE DISAPPEARING CLASS

[Boston Commercial Bulletin]

A lecturer states that the middle class in Russia has been destroyed by the bolshevists, and that the middle class in Germany has nearly ceased to exist, because of economic law in connection with the depreciation of the mark.

The capitalists or "bourgeois" class is hated by the bolshevist, and the idea of Lenine and his group was to have nothing but a proletariat class in Russia The rich, the intellectual, and the successful manufacturing or merchandising classes were killed, driven into exile, or forced to become laborers.

For many years the world has believed that the health and wealth of a nation is best measured by the condition of its middle-class citizens, rather than by the wealth or numbers of the very rich or the very poor.

The Russians have tried to believe that the ideal condition of the world is to have nobody rise above the low level of the proletariat.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

It seems to the unbiased observed that Police Commissioner De Coo of Los Angeles is neglecting great opportunity to be of service to the public. The duty that appeals for performance is extremely easy. The gentleman might attend to it himself, completing the job in less than sixty seconds. To pen a concise and neatly worded resignation ought not to take more than that time.

HENRY JAMES

The whole community is interested in the efforts of Chief of Police Vollmer to get the upper hand of the criminal element. Apparently he is making an honest and able fight, hampered more than by anything else, by the opposition of the very men who should be eager to sustain him. In making a list of such men the natural impulse would be to place the name of De Coo at the top.

When the services of Vollmer were procured he was promised a free hand. The public, having observed the celerity with which the former chief was kicked out when he refused to take orders from politicians who had insolently assumed authority, and had become the "invisible government," did not have faith in the promise. Predictions were made freely that Vollmer would go the instant he insisted on doing his work properly.

Vollmer has been saved thus far because the best citizens have rallied to his support, not as an invisible government, but as a visible adjunct of real municipal government. But as these citizens rally De Coo was not found in their midst. Therefore the suggestion that he resign.

Germany is reported as drifting rapidly towards disintegration. Probably the rumor is exaggerated, but that the country is in a bad way there can be no denial.

Civilization had not hoped for the effacement of Germany. On the contrary it had desired that it become rid of militaristic rule, and thus become an acceptable neighbor.

There could be no more valuable political instruction than that to be derived just now from "The Life and Letters" of the late Walter Hines Pages, devoted and heroic American, who gave his life for his country as truly as though he had perished in battle.

Persons with a leaning toward Bryan would find instruction in those messages written by Page without a thought that they were to become public. Also, if there are those who really think of Ford as presidential stuff, the book offers them a chance to acquire knowledge of value.

OUR CHILDREN

By ANGELO PATRI

THE GIRL'S JOB

The boy is born into the world with the well established notion that he is to do a man's work and that he is expected to prepare himself for the doing of it as promptly as possible.

The girl has no such notion. The ghostly tradition of the idle woman has not been laid even by the new woman idea and the suffrage. A woman is not to work, really. She's to be in the home.

Washing and ironing and baking, sewing and nursing, bearing and rearing children, managing a house and all its entails, do not, in the minds of the people constitute a job that requires any training. Girls are to "pick it up" as their mothers did. And that's a great injustice to the girls.

No system of education should be permitted to feel that it has done its duty by the girls until every girl that comes under its influence has been trained in home-making and everything that goes with it. The girl is entitled to know what is before her and have a chance to prepare for it.

After that she still needs all the educational life the schools can give her. Nothing she asks for should be withheld. Then she should pick out the one job she likes and go into it with all that is in her whether building or sewing, making hats or selling motors.

Why train her in such a way if she is going to be married and rear a family? Why put all that energy into one line when she is destined to live all her life in the circumscribed home?

There's plenty of us. A woman needs to bring to her job of home making the broadest possible knowledge of the world and its doings.

She needs to bring to her task of mothering the finest kind of intelligence that the life she bestows may be the richest gift possible.

A woman's job in the outside world becomes the background of her life in her own field when she starts work there.

It allows her to appreciate her husband's efforts to make his way. It gives her practical experience in spending and saving. Nobody should take the responsibility of spending money until he has earned some and tried to stretch it over the real and fancied needs of every day.

A woman's outside job ought to mean much to her children. The alertness of body and mind it brought her, the contacts with people, the difficulties, the successes, the mistakes, give her a store of wisdom that enables her to advise them intelligently.

"And you'd train a girl in a special line of work only to have her drop it when she is married? Such a waste! Why not follow both? A woman is entitled to her career."

True. If the talent is so great as to threaten a loss to the world it will take care of itself. If it's only a job, it won't matter. What matters is that the girl be given the training she needs for her life work. She isn't getting it.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

A lion met a tiger
As they drank beside the pool,
Said the tiger to the lion,
"You're roaring like a fool."

"That's not foolish," said the lion,
With a twinkle in his eyes,
"They call me king of all the beasts
Because I advertise."

A rabbit heard them talking,
And ran home like a streak,
He thought he'd try the lion's plan,
But his roar was just a squeak.

A fox came by to investigate,
Had luncheon in the woods,
So when we advertise, good friends,

Johnny Myers to Meet Phil Moss, Other Bouts Slated

Johnny Myers, heavyweight boxer of the local fire department, will meet Phil Moss in a four-round battle tonight in the main event of the Glendale Athletic club fights being staged at Hahn's auditorium, 109 North Brand boulevard. Five other speedy bouts have been provided as preliminaries. Les Marston, matchmaker, announces that the women scheduled to box tonight would not appear, as the bout has been cancelled.

It is anticipated that the arena will be crowded to capacity by throngs of fans who are anxious to get a view of the fights. Last week standing room was at a premium, and indications also point to a packed house tonight.

The Postoffice band will furnish music before the show begins and also between the bouts. They will have a position on the platform. Chick Watson will referee the affair. Chick proved popular in his decisions last week.

Matchmaker Marston announces that John Hackenschmidt, local grappler, will wrestle Polk, champion of the A. E. F., as a feature next Tuesday. Hack wrestled Bull Montana to a draw here last month and the match with the soldier champ should prove a popular one.

The complete card for tonight is as follows:

KEEN INTEREST IS TAKEN BY GIRLS IN TENNIS

Mary Barbara Taylor, who is in charge of the girls' tennis tournament, at the local High school, reports that the tennis classes are coming on very satisfactory. Dorothy Cotton, a former Glendale High student, is coaching two classes in tennis.

Every Tuesday and Thursday afternoons these classes are held. Two classes are held each afternoon. The first one is from 1:30 until 2, and the second is from 2:30 until 3. Any girl may join the classes, for it is not necessary to be a "shark" at tennis to receive membership.

The tournament in tennis has been started and the girls are taking a lively interest in it. Keen competition has been aroused and each girl is trying very hard to win a name for herself in tennis. The five best players will be chosen from the tournament and they will be eligible to the tennis club. These five will probably have opportunity to play in the matches against other schools. So there is something very definite for each girl to work for who enters the tournament.

The girls who have entered their names in the tournament so far are: Helen Anderson, Lois Osborne, Virginia Clark, Eugenia Henry, Barbara Kranz, Louise Emery, Ruth McAbie, June Bodkin, Ruth Vogil, Dorothy Forbes, Lois Wardel, Mildred Brockway and Mary Barbara Taylor.

CARDS PREPARE FOR GAME WITH TROJAN ELEVEN

By LEON DAVID

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Oct. 23.—The football game between Stanford and the University of Southern California ranks in the minds of the Cardinal adherents next to the traditional California tussle.

While early season dope is not reliable, the Stanford comeback which has been apparent in the first three varsity games of the season promises much. Stanford defeated Nevada, fresh from Reno, in an easy fought game, 27 to 0. Nevada a week later, with her men injured and with the wear of two accumulative trips telling upon her, lost to "Gloomy" Gus's first and second teams with a count of 33 to 0. Oxy went down by a 42 to 0 count. When U. S. C. plays Stanford, it will be the southern team which will have to do the traveling, and this is the sort of an advantage the Redshirts will have.

The Stanford freshmen are an uncertain quality, playing erratically, and with a lack of backfield men. They will play the Trojan cubs at Los Angeles on October 27, while the respective varsities are having things out at Palo Alto.

SPORT-O-GRAMS

By FRANCIS WILKERSON READ

THOSE SOUTHERN BRANCH CUBS

Next Saturday the Southern Branch football team will swing into action for the first conference game of the year. At 2:30 p. m. the Cubs will take the field against the Whittier college footballers at Moore field, Vermont near Santa Monica boulevard. After several weeks of real intensive practice, the Bruins are now ready to meet all comers.

So far this season entirely too little has been said in regard to the Southern Branch team. It has been almost overlooked by the critics who are attempting to pick the winner of the Southern California conference. The Cubs are an outfit that cannot be overlooked. From a team that had never won a game two years ago, it has now climbed to the position of a powerful football machine that cannot be overlooked by any aspirant for the championship.

Using the famous Andy Smith system, so successful at Berkeley and coached by former stars of the California varsity, the Cubs have shown up well during the preliminary training season. They have engaged in but two practice games outside of scrimmages with their own freshmen, and have won both of these conflicts. A week ago they downed the San Diego Teachers, while last Saturday they defeated the Loyola college eleven. They did not make as high a score against San Diego as did Occidental, nor against Loyola as did Whittier, but both these teams played the Cubs last, and both visibly improved their style of football in the meantime.

The upset in the conference dope caused by the sudden and unexpected rise of the Whittier Poets makes things a little more complicated for the Bruins than was at first supposed. Coach Jimmy Cline has all along been pointing his charges toward the Occidental and Caltech games as the hardest encounters of the season. These games are the last on the Cub schedule. Now, to have to face Whittier, one of the strongest teams of all, in the very first game is an exceedingly difficult task to place before the Bruins.

It seems that Cline has been developing some real football players out Vermont avenue way. One of the finds of the year is Attilio ("Tillie") Parisi, who is calling signals. He is a real brainy quarterback and is fast on his feet. Cap Haralson has changed from the line to the backfield and is playing at half. Captain Walt Westcott, Bresee, Holingsworth, Jones, Thursby and Sanford, along with the others, promise to develop into a real team that will give another startling surprise to the football fans of the southland. The Cubs are planning to beat Whittier Saturday. They have a job on their hands but are not afraid of it. Perhaps there will be another monkey wrench tossed into the well-oiled conference machinery. Quien sabe?

ANOTHER UPSET

The defeat handed the Navy by Penn State Saturday is rather disappointing to the western fans who have been anticipating the coming of the Navy for the New Year's game at Pasadena. This is not the first time that a team selected early in the season has gone down to defeat and thus lowered the class of the great inter-sectional game. The Navy will prove a great drawing card and will undoubtedly put up a good game, but nevertheless it will not have the class of an undefeated team. It seems that time has proven that it is best to wait until Thanksgiving to select the representatives in the great classic. At that time the football championship in the east has been decided and a team can be picked than has been undefeated, at the same time giving sufficient opportunity to make preparations for the trip.

CHANCE ARRIVES IN L. A., MEUSEL BROTHERS BACK

Frank Chance, former Glendora rancher, who managed the Boston Red Sox during the season just closed, has arrived in Los Angeles for the winter. He is accompanied by Mrs. Chance.

According to Chance, he has not signed with any club for next season, but he expects to be at the helm of one of the major league clubs when the training grind starts next spring. He is negotiating with several club owners who are anxious to secure his services.

Taking one of the poorest excuses for a ball club that ever performed in the majors, Chance instilled a lot of fight into the Boston Red Sox and gave the fans a lot of good baseball although his club finished in the cellar. Under Chance, Howard Ehmke, the Glendale boy who has been in the majors several years bnt never properly handled, pitched the greatest ball of his career, winding up a great season by pitching a no-hit game and following it with a one-hit contest.

PLAN TO MATCH ZEV AND MY OWN ON NOVEMBER 3

[By Associated Press]

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—Zev, international 3-year-old champion as a result of its decisive victory Saturday, over Papyrus, the English derby winner, will settle his rivalry with My Own for American honors in the Latonia championship at Latonia, Ky., November 3, unless present plans go astray.

Samuel C. Hildreth, trainer of Zev, today announced that the Rancocas colt would be shipped to Latonia next wek for the big stake—and as Rear-Admiral Cary T. Grayson, owner of My Own, already had entered his unbeaten star, it seemed assured that these two thoroughbreds would settle their disputed question of supremacy.

"Nothing will keep Zev out of the race except a breakdown,' declared Hildreth, who added that they had declined to enter his charge in the $25,000 Washington handicap at a mile and a quarter to be run as the closing feature at Laurel, Md., next Saturday. My Own is an entry in this event, but there was some speculation today as to whether Grayson might not withdraw his horse in anticipation of fulfilling at Latonia his desire to have the great son of King James match strides with Zev.

CITRUS LEMONS NEXT VICTIMS FOR GLENDALE

Dynamiters Preparing to Subdue Azusa Grid Team

Having defeated the South Pasadena eleven by a 26 to 0 score in the first league game, the Glendale high footballers are now preparing to take on Citrus high this Friday afternoon on the local field. The Lemons should prove easy for the Dynamiters, as they fell by a 10 to 3 score to Alhambra last Friday. However, you never can tell. On Thursday afternoon the local lightweight will travel to Azusa, where they will take on the Citrus babes.

Glendale has this year the best football team since 1920. In that year the Dynamiters cleaned up the Central league and fell only in the playoffs. The eleven of 1923 looks superior to any bunch of gridders produced by Glendale for a long time. All over Southern California the Red and Black team is being hailed as a likely contender for the southland honors.

The only criticism that has been made of the locals is that the line appears weak at time. The backfield is a smashing one and when backed up by the line, can lick anything in sight. If Hayhurst is able to make his charges improve with every game they will be some bunch of football players by the end of the season.

In all likelihood the same lineup that faced South Pasadena will start against the Citrus Lemons. It will probably be as follows: Lavelle, left end; Dodson, left tackle; Morrison, left guard; Zaun, center; Brucker, right guard; Phillips, right tackle; Horri, right end; Bud Elliott, quarter; Ryan, left half; West, right half; Howard Elliot, full.

MEUSEL BROTHERS HOME FROM EAST

Emil Meusel and Bob Meusel, the most famous brothers in baseball, arrived in Los Angeles last night to spend the winter.

Bobby Meusel, outfielder for the New York Americans, carried home the heaviest check of the two, his cut of the world's series amounting to more than $6100.

"Irish" Meusel, who had the biggest check the past two years, carried home the loser's end of the purse.

The Meusel brothers have permission to play ball until Nov. 10.

TENNIS MATCHES ARE PLAYED OFF AT HIGH SCHOOL

Organization of All Class Teams Is Well Under Way

Semi-final matches are being played at Glendale High by all classes this week and a great deal of interest is being shown. Several thrilling matches have been played when contestants have been closely matched. Interclass matches will very likely be begun by the last of this week, unless some of the semi-finals are late in being run off.

The class teams are pretty well made up. The freshmen team is as follows, in the order in which they will probably come: White, Finch, Halstead and Trott.

The sophomore team will probably run in the folloiwng order: Maxwell, Robinson, Case and Townsend.

The Junior team: Lee, Harding, Osborne and Haskins.

The Seniors will probably be: Laird or Woods, first man with loser as second; Garner, third; Scoville, fourth.

In the semi-finals, Maxwell defeated Haskins with the score 6-1, 6-1, 61. There was no doubt of the winner as can be seen by the score. Maxwell showed supreme ability and form.

Robinson had a little harder time with his opponent, Case, but finally triumphed on the upper end of the score 6-2, 6-3, 4-6, 6-2.

In the Junior class Lee and Hardy played a better match than the score of 6-2, 6-1, 6-1 indicates. Both men have very good form and strong strokes, but Lee had the edge on Hardey when it came to serve.

Osborne won in his semifinal match with Haskins by a count of 6-1, 6-3, 6-2. Osborn had the best form of the two but Haskins plays a very stead game.

In the Senior class semifinals, Garner was matched up against Woods. Woods went over the top with a 6-4, 7-5, 6-4. Garner gave Woods a good fight. He is a very careful player and he has good control of the ball when it comes to placing. Woods seems to have improved over last year. His serve is decidedly better.

Laird easily overcame Scoville with the score 6-2, 6-1, 6-4. Bob had the upper hand during the entire match. Scoville couldn't even touch his serve and point after was won by his failure to return the serve.

Garner and Scoville played a very close macth forthird man on the Senior team. The first four sets were divided two up, each man winning his set on the uper court. In the fifth set court was changed every odd game. Scoville fell down and Garner took the tournament. The score was 3-6, 6-2, 2-6, 6-2, 6-2.

A very interesting match will soon be played between Laird and Woods for first man. No one knows what the result will be, although both men have their adherents.

In cleaning gas ovens put a little ammonia in the water. They will be found to clean more easily, as the ammonia prevents them from turning brown.

Part VII—Continued

Then she caught sight of the Laird, and kissed him; and then she recognized Little Billee.

She looked at him for a long while in great surprise, and then shook hands with him.

"How pale you are! and so changed—you've got a mustache! What's the matter? Why are you all dressed in black, with white cravats, as if you were going to a ball? Where's Svengali? I should like to go home!"

Where—what do you call—home, I mean—where is it?" asked Taffy.

"C'est a l'hotel de Normandie, dans le Haymarket. On va vous y conduire, madame," said Monsieur J——.

"Oui—c'est ca!" said Trilby—"Hotel de Normandie—mais Svengali—ou est-ce qu'il est?"

"Helas! madame—il est tres malade!"

"Malade? Qu'est-ce qu'il a? How funny you look, with your mustache, Little Billee! dear, dear Little Billee! so pale, so very pale! Are you ill too? Oh, I hope not! How glad I am to see you again—you can't tell! though I promised your mother I wouldn't—never, never! Where are we now, dear Little Billee?"

Monsieur J—— seemed to have lost his head. He was constantly running in and out of the room, distracted. The bandsmen began to talk and try to explain, in incomprehensible French, to Taffy. Gecko seemed to have disappeared. It was a bewildering business—noises from outside, the tramp and hustle and shouts of the departing crowd, people running in and out and asking for Monsieur J——, policemen, firemen, and what not!

Then Little Billee, who had been exerting the most heroic self-control, suggested that Trilby should come to his house in Fitzroy Square, first of all, and be taken out of all this—and the idea struck Taffy as a happy one—and it was proposed to Monsieur J——, who saw that our three friends were old friends of Madame Svengali's, and people to be trusted; and he was only too glad to be relieved of her, and gave his consent.

Little Billee and Taffy drove to Fitzroy Square to prepare Little Billee's landlady, who was much put out at first at having such a novel and unexpected charge imposed on her. It was all explained to her that it must be so. Then Madame Svengali, the greatest singer in Europe and an old friend of her tenant's, had suddenly gone out of her mind from grief at the tragic death of her husband, and that for this night at least the unhappy lady must sleep under that roof—indeed, in Little Billee's own bed, and that he would sleep at a hotel; and that a nurse would be provided at once—it might be only for that one night; and that the lady was as quiet as a lamb, and would probably recover her faculties after a night's rest. A doctor was sent for from close by; and soon Trilby appeared, with the Laird, and her appearance and her magnificent sables impressed Mrs. Godwin, the landlady—brought her figuratively on her knees. Then Taffy, the Laird, and Little Billee departed again and dispersed—to procure a nurse for the night, to find Gecko, to fetch some of Trilby's belongings from the Hotel de Normandie, and her maid.

The maid (the old German Jewess and Svengali's relative), distracted by the news of her master's death, had gone to the theatre. Gecko was in the hands of the police. Things had got to a terrible pass. But our three friends did their best, and were up most of the night.

So much for la Svengali's debut in London.

The present scribe was not present on that memorable occasion, and has written this inadequate and most incomplete description partly from hearsay and private information, partly from the reports in the contemporary newspapers.

Should any surviving eye-witness of that lamentable fiasco read these pages, and see any gross inaccuracy in this bald account of it, the P. S. will feel deeply obliged to the same for any corrections or additions, and these will be duly acted upon and gratefully acknowledged in all subsequent editions; which will be numerous, no doubt, on account of the great interest still felt in "la Svengali," even by those who never saw or heard her (and they are many), and also because the present scribe is better qualified (by his opportunities) for the compiling of this brief biographical sketch than any person now living, with the exception, of course, of "Taffy" and "the Laird," to whose kindness, even more than to his own personal recollections, he owes whatever it may contain of serious historical value.

Next morning they all three went to Fitzroy Square. Little Billee had slept at Taffy's rooms in Jermyn Street.

Trilby seemed quite pathetically glad to see them again. She was dressed simply and plainly—in black; her trunks had been sent from the hotel.

The hospital nurse was with her; the doctor had just left. He had said that she was suffering from some great nervous shock—a pretty safe diagnosis!

Her wits had apparently not come back, and she seemed in no way to realize her position.

"Ah! what it is to see you again, all three! It makes one feel glad to be alive! I've thought of many things, but never of this—never! Three nice clean Englishmen, all speaking English—and such dear old friends! Ah! j'aime tant ca—c'est le ciel! I wonder I've got a word of English left!"

Her voice was so soft and sweet and low that these ingenuous remarks sounded like a beautiful song. And she "made the soft eyes" at them all three, one after another, in her old way; and the soft eyes quickly filled with tears.

She seemed ill and weak and worn out, and insisted on keeping the Laird's hand in hers.

"What's the matter with Svengali? He must be dead!"

They all three looked at each other, perplexed.

"Ah! he's dead! I can see it in your faces. He'd got heart-disease. I'm sorry! oh, very sorry indeed! He was always very kind, poor Svengali!"

"Yes, He's dead," said Taffy.

"And Gecko—dear little Gecko—is he dead too? I saw him last night—he warmed my hands and feet: where were we?"

"No. Gecko's not dead. But he's had to be locked up for a little while. He struck Svengali, you know. You saw it all."

"I? No! I never saw it. But I dreamt something like it! Gecko with a knife, and people holding him, and Svengali bleeding on the ground. That was just before Svengali's illness. He'd cut himself in the neck, you know—with a rusty nail, he told me. I wonder how! . . . But it was wrong of Gecko to strike him. They were such friends. Why did he?"

"Well—it was because Svengali struck you with his conductor's wand when you were rehearsing. Struck you on the fingers and made you cry! don't you remember?"

"Struck me! rehearsing?—made me cry! what are you talking about, dear Taffy? Svengali never struck me! he was kindness itself! always! and what should I rehearse?"

"Well, the songs you were to sing at the theatre in the evening."

"Sing at the theatre! I never sang at any theatre—except last night, if that big place was a theatre! and they didn't seem to like it! I'll take precious good care never to sing in a theatre again! How they howled! and there was Svengali in the box opposite me, laughing at me. Why was I taken there? and why did that funny little Frenchman in the white waistcoat ask me to sing? I know very well I can't sing well enough to sing in a place like that! What a fool I was! It all seems like a bad dream! What was it all about? Was it a dream, I wonder!"

"Well—but don't you remember singing at Paris, in the Salle des Bashibazoucks—and at Vienna—St. Petersburg—lots of places?"

"What nonsense, dear—you're thinking of some one else! I never sang anywhere! I've been to Vienna and St. Petersburg—but I never sang there—good heavens!"

Then there was a pause, and our three friends looked at her helplessly.

Little Billee said: "Tell me, Trilby—what made you cut me dead when I bowed to you in the Place de la Concorde, and you were riding with Svengali in that swell carriage?"

"I never rode in a swell carriage with Svengali! omnibuses were more in our line! You're dreaming, dear Little Billee—you're taking me for somebody else; and as for my cutting you—why, I'd sooner cut myself—into little pieces!"

"Where were you staying with Svengali in Paris?"

"I really forget. Were we in Paris. Oh yes, of course. Hotel Bertrand, Place Notre Dame des Victoires."

"How long have you been going about with Svengali?"

"Oh, months, years—I forget. I was very ill. He cured me."

"Ill! What was the matter?"

"Oh! I was mad with grief, and pain in my eyes, and wanted to kill myself, when I lost my dear little Jeannot, at Vibraye. I fancied I hadn't been careful enough with him. I was crazed! Don't you remember writing to me there, Taffy—through Angele Boisse? Such a sweet letter you wrote! I know it by heart! And you too, Sandy;" and she kissed him. "I wonder where they are, your letters?—I've got nothing of my own in the world—not even your dear letters—nor Little Billee's—such lots of them!

"Well, Svengali used to write to me too—and then he got my address from Angele. . . .

"When Jeannot died, I felt I must kill myself or get away from Vibraye—get away from the people there—so when he was buried I cut my hair short and got a workman's cap and blouse and trousers and walked all the way to Paris without saying anything to anybody. I didn't want anybody to know; I wanted to escape from Svengali, who wrote that he was coming there to fetch me. I wanted to hide in Paris. When I got there at last it was two o'clock in the morning, and I was in dreadful pain—and I'd lost all my money—thirty francs—through a hole in my trousers-pocket. Besides, I had a row with a carter in the Halle. He thought I was a man, and hit me and gave me a black eye, just because I patted his horse and fed it with a carrot I'd been trying to eat myself. He was tipsy, I think. Well, I looked over the bridge at the river—just by the Morgue—and wanted to jump in. But the Morgue sickened me, so I hadn't the pluck. Svengali used to be always talking about the Morgue, and my going there some day. He used to say he'd come and look at me there, and the idea made me so sick I couldn't. I got bewildered, and quite stupid.

"Then I went to Angele's, in the Rue des Cloitres Ste. Petronille, and waited about; but I hadn't the courage to ring, so I went to the Place St. Anatole des Arts, and looked up at the old studio window, and thought how comfortable it was in there, with the big settee near the stove, and all that, felt inclined to ring up Madame Vinard; and then I remembered Little Billee was ill there, and his mother and sister were with him. Angele had written me, you know. Poor Little Billee! There he was, very ill!

"So I walked about the place, and up and down the Rue des Mauvais Ladres. Then I went down the Rue de Seine to the river again, and again I hadn't the pluck to jump in. Besides, there was a sergent de ville who followed and watched me. And the fun of it was that I knew him quite well, and he didn't know me a bit. It was Celestin Beaumollet, who got so tipsy on Christmas night. Don't you remember? The tall one, who was pitted with the small-pox.

"Then I walked about till near daylight. Then I could stand it no longer, and went to Svengali's, in the Rue Tirellard, but he'd moved to the Rue des Saints Peres; and I went there and found him. I didn't want to a bit, but I couldn't help myself. It was fate, I suppose! He was very kind, and cured me almost directly, and got me coffee and bread-and-butter—the best I ever tasted—and a warm bath from Bidet Freres, in the Rue Savonarole. It was heavenly! And I slept for two days and two nights! And then he told me how fond he was of me, and how he would always cure me, and take care of me, and marry me, if I would go away with him. He said he would devote his whole life to me, and took a small room for me, next to his.

"I stayed with him there a week, never going out or seeing any one, mostly asleep. I'd caught a chill.

"He played in two concerts and made a lot of money: and then we went away to Germany together; and no one was a bit the wiser."

"And did he marry you?"

"Well—no. He couldn't, poor fellow! He'd already got a wife living; and three children, which he declared were not his. They live in Elberfeld in Prussia; she keeps a small sweet-stuff shop there. He behaved very badly to them. But it was not through me! He'd deserted them long before; but he used to send them plenty of money when he'd got any; I made him, for I was very sorry for her. He was always talking about her, and what she said and what she did; and imitating her saying her prayers and eating pickled cucumber with one hand and drinking schnapps with the other, so as not to lose any time; till he made me die of laughing. He could be very funny, Svengali, though he was German, poor dear! And then Gecko joined us, and Marta."

"Who's Marta?"

"His aunt. She cooked for us, and all that. She's coming here presently: she sent word from the hotel; she's very fond of him. Poor Marta! Poor Gecko! What will they ever do without Svengali?"

"Then what did he do to live?"

"Oh! he played at concerts, I suppose—and all that."

"Did you ever hear him?"

"Yes. Sometimes Marta took me; at the beginning, you know. He was always very much applauded. He plays beautifully. Everybody said so."

"Did he never try and teach you to sing?"

"Oh, male, ale! not he! Why, he always laughed when I tried to sing; and so did Marta; and so did Gecko! It made them roar! I used to sing 'Ben Bolt.' They used to make me, just for fun—and go into fits. I didn't mind scrap. I'd had no training, you know!"

LA CRESCENTA NOTES

In a recent issue of a Glendale paper, there was a statement by Captain A. H. Langford, chief of the Glendale fire department, that he regretted not being notified of the Verdugo hills fire, for an hour after its origin. C. Jennings Young, assistant fire warden of this district, in self defense, states he made every effort to reach Captain Lankford by phone, but his own phone and everyone in his district was out of order and he was compelled to send a special messenger to Glendale. Mr. Young is considered one of the best amateur fire fighters in the country and with the La Crescenta equipment has responded to every appeal in his district and out of it, but has been greatly handicapped by the poor phone service of the La Crescenta valley.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lee Woolwine and son, Thomas Le Woolwine, Jr., left during the past week for an extended visit abroad. Mr. and Mrs. Woolwine have been guests at the La Crescenta hotel for the past six months, coming up here for a rest and Mr. Woolwine's health. During their stay abroad Mr. and Mrs. Woolwine will visit France, England and Italy.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Orhmund and children of Pasadena were guests of Homer A. Baldridge over Sunday.

Mrs. J. W. Singleton, of West Honolulu avenue, returned last Thursday from Seattle, where she has been the guest of her mother and friends for the past six weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Thomas were hosts at a delightful supper party at their home, "Cuddle Doon" last Sunday evening. Their guests included Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Minford of Verdugo Knolls, Mrs. C. Scowles and R. E. Scowles of Flintridge; Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Haskins, Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Collins, Mrs. Robert Wildback and daughter Marjorie, and Mrs. Mary B. Darrow.

Mrs. Charles Bowden of West Mayfield returned last week from an extended motor trip through the northern part of the state.

Harvey S. Bissell was re-elected president of the Los Angeles County Farm Bureau last week. Mr. Bissell's article, "Shall this Again Be a Desert?" in the October Farm Bureau monthly, has received much favorable comment. Besides being intensely interesting it shows Mr. Bissel has given his subject much serious thought.

The Missionary society of the La Crescenta Community church will hold its monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. F. Telfer on Oak and Honolulu avenues next Friday afternoon.

GLENDALE TO DEBATE SAN DIEGO

First Debate of Season Will Take Place November 23

TO BE SIMULTANEOUS

Affirmative Will Remain Here While Negative Travels South

Friday, November 23, has been definitely set as the date for the San Diego debate. It will be simultaneous, as will be all the debates this year; the negative travels to San Diego, and the affirmative remains at home. This is the first Southern California league debate of the year, and altho the question has not been definitely decided upon, it will probably be, "Resolved, That the United States should enter the Court of International Justice." A reply is expected hourly announcing the decision upon the question. However, it is expected that San Diego will approve of the selection, as it is a widely discussed and well balanced subject for debate.

The question is quite familiar to the Glendale students, for, besides being the question to be used in the Junior-Senior debate, scheduled for November 2, it was also the subject used for the championship debates in the sophomore public speaking classes last year, and therefore there will be a large number of people interested.

The debate will be simultaneous, as all the debates this year will probably be. The negative will travel to San Diego, and the affirmative will remain at home. As many as possible are urged to attend the debate at San Diego, but, as it will be possible for only a few to do this, a grand showing is expected at home, as the question is certain to arouse a great deal of interest.

Those out for the San Diego team are: Paul Cunningham, Isabel Tousey, Arden Gingery, Wendell Beauchamp, Mary Jo Phillips, Bonnie Jean Lockwood, Horace Anderson, Charles Worley, Katherine McNary, Jack Finch and Donald McMillan.

Paul Cunningham and Isabel Tousey are well known in the school, as they are both veterans of several winning debates. Katherine McNary, Charles Worley and Horace Anderson are also well known as having participated in a league debate. Bonnie Jean Lockwood is famous, especially among the juniors, for having been chosen as champion of the sophomore public speaking classes in the interclass debates which Miss Corry held last year.

Mary Jo Phillips, Jack Finch and Donald McMillan all participated in the sophomore championship debates last year, and are all very successful debaters.

Arden Gingery and Wendell Beauchamp, although not having participated in any inter-class or league debates, were well known in debate last year and were very successful in all class debates.

With this large amount of good material at her disposal, Glendale has a good chance of bringing home the championship this year.

"No," said the woman, emphatically, to her London neighbor,, "I don't hold with these 'ere therms. When I says gas I means gas, and I likes to know what I'm payin' for. Therms, indeed! Why can't we 'ave it like we used to 'ave it—by the Cupid's feet?"

HOLLYWOOD AS IT REALY IS, AT THE T. D. & L. THEATER

Showing Hollywood, Cal., the capital of filmdom, as it really is, not as it is sometimes painted, is one of the features of the James Cruze Paramount picture, "Hollywood," which has its last showings today at the T. D. & L. theater. Frank Condon, who wrote the short story from which the picture was adapted, lives in and knows Hollywood intimately. James Cruze, the director, lives in and is familiar with every phase of the community and studio life. The only strangers are some of the unknown players, who interpret the roles of the folks from Centerville, Ind., and who are quite like the characters they depict.

Joel Whitaker is ordered west for his health. His granddaughter Angela, comes with him to seek a place in the films, having been told, and herself being quite certain, that she will be a howling success and a star. Later on, all the family come to California and all get into the films except Angela, who never gets a chance.

One of the features—perhaps the greatest—is seeing all the famous screen folk in one film. Another is the opportunity of seeing the famous places in and about the western film capital. Unquestionably this is the most novel picture that has ever reached the screen.

Community Service Hallowe'en Party

The Tuesday Afternoon clug will be the scene of much merriment Thursday evening when the young people of Glendale will gather there and be entertained by the Community Service at their Halowe'en party. Miss Bessie Hale, chairman of the decorating committee is busy arranging the palm court in the banquet room to give it as spooky an appearance as possible.

The young people who are planning to come are requested to have their admittance cards from the Community Service office with them. Those attending this party are to dress in appropriate Halloween costumes, but no masks are to be worn. The nominal fee of 25 cents per person will be the admittance charge.

The tea room, which is attractively decorated, will afford the youngsters much pleasure because of its fortune-telling booths and other Hallowe'en features. The following committee has charge of the stunts which will be put on between 9:30 and 10:30: Mrs. E. S. McKee, chairman; Mrs. W. A. Kulp, Mrs. Mae Rosenberg, Mrs. E. A. Troth and Mrs. C. C. Cooper. The refreshments of the evening will be in charge of Miss Ruth Ryan, chairman.

WALLY VAN BACK ON THE SCREEN IN 'THE DRIVIN' FOOL'

Wally Van is scoring a decided triumph at the Glendale theater in his new Hodkinson picture, "The Drivin' Fool," which is a screen adaptation of W. F. Sturm's story of the same name. This is Van's first appearance after an absence of about five years from the screen and he was tendered a warm welcome.

Wally plays the part of an auto racing fool who revels in front page notoriety concerning his wild escapades. To save his father from financial ruin he makes a record dash from coast to coast in six days facing hazards at the hands of crooks who seek to control his father's business. By this move Van establishes himself as an asset to the firm and has decided to give up his careless whims. A thrilling romance between Wally and the daughter of his dad's partner, adds no little excitement and suspense to this already swift moving comedy.

"The Drivin' Fool" brings Van back to the screen in a role especially suited to his talents and introduces an exceptional cast.

The cast includes Patsy Ruth Miller, Alec B. Francis, Wilton Taylor, Ramsey Wallace, Wilfred North and others of note.

PLAYERS WEAR NO MAKEUP IN 'MERRY-GO-ROUND'

"Merry-Go-Round," the Universal Super-Jewel attraction which is showing at the Gateway theater, presents one new feature in motion picture making that perhaps a very small portion of the audience notices.

The players wear no makeup.

Except in the case of two or three character players who put on whiskers or some other prominent adornment, the faces of the people in the picture are free from makeup. The usual grease paint, a thick coating of which is used to cover facial roughness or skin irregularities, is entirely absent. The natural skin is what is recorded on the screen.

Charles Kaufman and William Daniels, who photographed "Merry-Go-Round," represent the new type of camera artists who make their work more and more of an art as the industry progresses, and who today proclaim that if given time enough they can "photograph anything."

There are dozens of handicaps to players while they are working that destroy their efficiency and detract from the quality of their performances. One of these handicaps is makeup. It is greasy, sticky and altogether unpleasant. By eliminating it one more discomfort is taken out of their work.
